

What Does That Mean for Me As the Distance Learner?

You, as the student, are the key to every lesson you will take. Your contributions and discussions will drive what you, and others, will learn from these lessons. With this in mind, here are the simple concepts to help you be successful for this course.

- Post regularly, and on time, to the discussion forums
- Set aside specific times during the week that you will sit down and do your assignments, just like you would for a face to face classroom
- Build an online support team with your fellow students. Support and help each other as you work together to reach your end goal.
- Have fun! Education is much more satisfying and more successful if you enjoy your time and the people you meet.
